MODERN ENGLISH KONKANI DICTIONARY

Isidore Dantas
Joel D'Souza

'Modern English Konkani Dictionary' comes out as an extremely useful resource to bridge the gap that has emerged in understanding and applying Konkani in research and education domain. The possibilities that open up with this dictionary towards supporting Konkani language development are immense. The corpus of words that are compiled here can be utilised to build a comprehensive Konkani word corpus which can further facilitate applications such as Konkani Wiktionary, Spell check and OCR facility for Konkani. This dictionary aims to bring together attempts that are happening in the formal domains of social sciences and the digital efforts to preserve Konkani language. If these efforts can be synergised, there is no doubt regarding the bright future and vast applications of Konkani language.

Wiktionary (whose name is a blend of the words wiki and dictionary) is a multilingual, web-based project to create a free content dictionary of all words in all languages. It is available in 158 languages and in Simple English. Like its sister project Wikipedia, Wiktionary is run by the Wikimedia Foundation, and is written collaboratively by volunteers, dubbed "Wiktionarians". Its wiki software, MediaWiki, allows almost anyone with access to the website to create and edit entries.

Because Wiktionary is not limited by print space considerations, most of Wiktionary's language editions provide definitions and translations of words from many languages, and some editions offer additional information typically found in thesauri and lexicons. The English Wiktionary includes a Wikisaurus (thesaurus) of synonyms of various words.

Wiktionary data are frequently used in various natural languageprocessing tasks [1].

Preface

The circulation figures of the various Konkani publications, especially those sponsored by the Catholic Church in Goa, clearly indicate that the language has a sufficiently vast readership for Konkani written in the Roman script. Evidently, 28 per cent of the Goan population reads Konkani in the Roman (Latinised) script which has kept the language alive and prospering.

To cater to this sufficiently vast readership, there is a definite need for a standard English-Konkani dictionary which will assist writers in their various ventures.

Since the Liberation of Goa and consequent upon the recognition of Konkani as an independent and official language of the State, there has been almost no English-Konkani (Roman) Dictionary published, with the exception of the occasional reprints of outdated earlier editions, which do not conform at all to the current standards.

Therefore, the Modern English Konkani Dictionary is an attempt to fill the prevailing void. The dictionary comes in a suitable package of vocabulary of words which have been used by the Catholics and Hindus from Goa as well as several words used by the Konkani speaking people of Mangalore.

This strenuous task has been researched and completed with great difficulty as it has not received any support from any institution.

It is pertinent to note that we have deliberately refrained from using the letter 'y' in place of 'i', as we are of the firm opinion that the same should not be done until the English words used in the Roman script are not written consistently as per the actual pronunciation. The recent practice of using 'y' by some publications and writers has been confounding the reader unnecessarily. Hence many people end up inserting 'y' when there is no need whatsoever as will be evident from the following examples:

> Hanv prayer meeting-ek gelolom = I had gone to the beach for a meeting = I had gone for a prayer meeting.
> May amkam pavsan bhizoita = Mother drenches us in rain = May drenches us in rain.
> Pay amkam poiler melltta = Father meets us on first = We receive our salary on the first.

The Konkani pronunciation has traditionally followed the Portuguese and Latin languages for a couple of centuries at least, and hence the use of the letters 'q', 'w' and 'y' has been avoided. As we do not believe in being selective, we have used an apostrophe after the letters 'm' and 'n' only in specific cases where the word would otherwise imply a different meaning.

For example:

tem = she; tem' = obstinacy
him = these; him' = snow
am = o.k.; am' = general

The pronunciation of the vowels and consonants used in this dictionary are as under:

VOWELS

The major daily newspapers in Konkani – Sot, Divtti, Novem Goem, Uzvadd, etc. – came to be published only since the Liberation of Goa in 1961. The process and the cumulative effort to standardise the writing of Konkani properly, in the Roman script, has been going on gradually since then, and today we have nearly achieved the aim to a large extent. Hence we honestly feel that it is not wise to keep on changing the spelling of Konkani words anymore as it will only lead to confusion among the readers as is evident since the recent use of 'y'.

We genuinely trust that this Dictionary will prove sufficiently useful to the readers.

Happy browsing!

Isidore Dantas, a Pune-based Goan writer and a former banker, has been writing regularly for Konkani publications on diverse socio-cultural issues. He is profoundly fond of and concerned about Goa and his mother-tongue Konkani. Akashwani Mumbai broadcasts his programmes regularly. He has translated English articles into Konkani for the web and also assisted in the compilation of the Konkani Wikipedia. Several Konkani films carry his subtitles in English. Vozram, Utorsod, Konknni Cholchitram in Romi, Kannada and Devnagri versions figure among his research-related Konkani books. Honoured for his diverse activities with prestigious awards, Dantas cherishes the dream to see maimbhas Konkani flourish on all fronts and that it be accorded due respect soon among the prominent Indian languages. He has assisted Konkanverter - a project for Konkani script conversion utility. He translates documents into Konkani for reputed clients. e-mail isidoredantas@gmail.com

Joel D'Souza, a photo-journalist from Goa, has contributed a few inputs to the Modern English-Konkani Dictionary project. A feature writer in Konkani and English, he has been on the staff of the monthly English magazine Goa Today since several years. He has often advised and/or aided author pals in copy-editing, layout and translation.
